

When beginning any training plan, it is important to make sure you know what each session involves, so please take some time each week to familiarise yourself with the sessions that I have prescribed, and the exercises they contain. Please record every session using this app and use the progress page to monitor your progress. Your coach is able to view the completion of your plan and if you complete subsequent Lattice Training Plans with us, will use this information to build further progressions in your training.

As a guide to help you get started on structuring your training, your coach will have structured week 1 of your plan, and you will be able to use this to help schedule subsequent weeks. If you would like more informational content on planning your training week, please also see this YouTube video here.

Within the 'Your Training Tab', you will also see further guidance on scheduling, alongside general rules for recovery, outdoor climbing, deload weeks and taking time off from your plan. You will also find guidance on how you should proceed should you pick up an injury, become ill, or experience any other unexpected events that impact upon your training and climbing.

Further details re the Lattice Training Plan:

1. Lattice Training Plans are self-supported and do not come with coach support. Please email training@latticecetraining.com if you have any issues regarding receiving your plan or any major problems which mean this service is not functioning correctly. General training questions will not be answered via email, but you are very welcome to join our Facebook community group for a zero-cost option of "crowd sourced" thoughts and opinions on training.
2. Warming-up - It is important to complete a thorough warm-up before starting any of your prescribed training sessions - these are to be completed in addition to the sessions in your plan. If you are unsure on how best to warm up you can find some examples and general guidance on YouTube here and for when you are at home here.
3. Injury, Illness & Other Changes -
 - If you become injured during the period of your training plan (whether you consider this a niggle, tweak or full injury) or become ill, you should immediately cease training on your Lattice Training Plan and only recommence once you are pain and injury-free and/or sufficiently recovered (with support from a medical professional where appropriate). Taking a short term break from your plan is much better than delaying recovery and spending more time out from training later down the line. As this is a non-coached plan it is your responsibility to cease training, seek the opinion of a medical professional where appropriate, and only return to training when sufficiently recovered. We would also appreciate you letting us know by email (training@latticecetraining.com) if you become injured during your training plan.
 - If there are any other changes in your circumstances that mean you will not be able to follow the plan as initially intended, you may need to modify your training load because the training set out in your plan may no longer be appropriate.
 - Within the App, under 'Your Training', you can read further guidance on how to proceed in these circumstances.

We are extremely excited about starting this process with you and we are all really looking forward to supporting you with the next stage of your training and climbing.

If you have any issues with the running of the Lattice Training app please get in touch training@latticecetraining.com.

Thanks very much and enjoy!

Mina and the rest of the Lattice Training Team